

FAQs:

Current Position of IICUS and the BTEC Qualification

1A - Is the IICUS BTEC Course accredited by QCA?

- Only designated Awarding Bodies receive QCA approval for Courses.
- Edexcel, the leading provider of internationally recognised qualifications, is regulated by the QCA and has accredited IICUS to deliver the BTEC Level 2 Certificate in Cricket Umpiring qualification.

2A - What is the standard of IICUS Course materials for its BTEC Certificate qualification?

- All Course materials - including software - were submitted for rigorous scrutiny, evaluation and approval by Edexcel.

3A - Who will deliver the IICUS BTEC qualification Courses?

- Delivery will be under the control of the IICUS Education & Development Directorate headed by Denis Burns. To date 26 Tutors have been trained and accredited by IICUS to meet its Course Quality Assurance standards.

4A - What's the difference between Edexcel and the QCA?

- The QCA (about to become OfQual) is a Regulatory Body as well as an Awarding Body. It ensures that Awarding Bodies meet exacting standards of Quality Assurance (QA).
- Edexcel is an Awarding Body; in fact it is one of the world's largest and most respected qualifications awarding bodies. Edexcel does not approve submissions (Courses) submitted by any organisation unless and until the Courses and the Centres proposed for delivering those Courses have been rigorously vetted (verified).
- Edexcel offers one of two alternative options to organisations submitting Courses for BTEC award accreditation:
 - The standard National Qualifications Framework route (NQF), like the QCA
 - A Customised Framework route

5A - What's the difference between the standard NQF Route and customised Framework route?

- Not a great deal.
- The BTEC NQF route offers vocational qualifications. Because of this they attract UCAS points (students can use them when applying for Courses at universities etc).
- The BTEC Customised Framework route allows organisations to customise Courses to suit their specific needs. This allows much greater control by the organisation submitting them (e.g. IICUS). The Courses are not entered onto the NQF and are therefore not available to any other organisation to deliver. That is why IICUS chose this option; to retain control over its Courses, Tutors, and Course & Assessment materials.
- Companies who have used the unique services and support of Edexcel include First Group, Standard Life, BT Fleet, Panasonic, Siemens, and the Standards Driving Agency. (see <http://www.edexcel.org.uk/sfc/es/cs/psabs/>)
- The BTEC Levels in the Customised Framework route are equivalent to those in the NQF.

6A - In its April newsletter ECB ACO states that QCA has not approved the IICUS BTEC Course?

- IICUS has never sought QCA approval for its BTEC Course. IICUS is accredited by EDEXCEL, the leading provider of internationally recognised Qualifications.

7A - Has IICUS approached ECB with view to working alongside them?

- Yes, on numerous occasions. Meetings at Lords have been held over the past 6 months during which IICUS has offered its experienced Tutor teams to deliver training Courses to umpires and scorers nationwide on behalf of the ECB, but unfortunately we have to report that this has been rejected out of hand.

8A - Does IICUS intend to continue as an independent Institute?

- IICUS is an Institute and fully intends to serve umpires and scorers to the very highest standards whilst working alongside those that wish to acknowledge the importance of freedom of choice.
